EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Regulations)

Individuals who are residents of Guernsey are permitted, under the Income Tax Law, to contribute to Retirement Annuity Schemes or Retirement Annuity Trust Schemes which provide personal pensions upon retirement. The Income Tax Authority is empowered, under the Law, to make Regulations which, amongst other things, lay down the limits of contributions which are permitted.

These Regulations:

- lay down the limits of contributions and mean that with effect from 1st January 2005, individuals are able to contribute up to the maxima shown;
- limit the total of tax-free lump sum payments which may be made from an approved occupational pension scheme or an approved annuity scheme; and
- give an entitlement to carry forward the amount of any qualifying unused contributions for 1999, 2000, 2001, 2002, 2003 and 2004 for utilisation in 2005.
